“Deb was my everything. She was that light I was so blessed to wake up to. She was the last person I saw before I went to sleep. I was with her for the good times and the bad. I was there for her from the start, I was there for her when she had a stroke, I never left her when things got bad. I made sure that she got to see the places she wanted to see. I was with her until her end. Deb was difficult at times, and I stayed. I found her both times. When she had the stroke and I found her when she passed away. I've seen Deb at her best and her worst. And I loved her through it all. I miss her so much.”
