“ So, we moved. Again. One short prayer and a phone call got us another townhouse in our subdivision . I saw some photos; the ones where my son & I are skydiving and I remember. My last conversation with my Step Father was about that Leap of Faith. And he told me about his jumps. I've had two with Jase. Bob had so, so many more and he told me about most of them and the inevitability of risk. He told me he was ready to "make the transition" and likened Death to that inevitability. "Love EVERY DAY. Live EVERY moment. We are here only to learn how to love; not so simple". Bob shared his life with me, his feelings and no fear. Soldier, gentleman, Husband, Father; Friend. Eye to eye and with a Soldier's handshake, he said goodbye. You never grow up, just old. Only if you want to.

So, go out and play. Don't watch (Rodney Dangerfield one liner - "I asked my parents for a watch once...and they let me, oh!").

So I think I'll just continue to run, jump, hit, ride, slide, ski, flip 'n swim and play everyday until I fall off of this world. Hopefully with as much Faith, Courage, Dignity and Humility as "The Duke of Ardmore". God Bless Bob. God bless Everyone.
