“ Lois, Brooke, Steve, Jack,

Your family has been part of our family my entire life (except the 1st 6 1/2). What joy I have looking back and always having the memories of four adults (other adults too): Ward and Lo, Jack and Ev always laughing - tons of laughter - no matter what they were doing. One time it was the game Twister! As children we never questioned their love for each other and us. We didn't know how soon Jack would pass or Ev or Ward, or our brother John. I could not admire more, Lois' tenacity to just keep going, doing what she had to do - and that was take care of Todd. I'm honestly not sure if Todd had 1 or 2 good days from the day he was diagnosed and until he passed. ! She has Brooke and Steve and her love - Jack. The way things happened for Todd - he just poured his heart and soul in the Fennville house which is beautiful and still charming - he knew how to do that so well. Todd and Lois needed each other - not in any tangible way - but they did. Profound sorrow is so difficult to rise up from... I think many of us are still working on that. And now again, profound sorrow - losing a child, her son Todd. And Brooke losing her only sibling her brother Todd. A Life changes again. Trying to rise up beyond the profound sorrow. That's ok - I know they are out there somewhere and they are ok and are pushing us, a little bit every day to 'Live your lives, do what it takes to stay healthy and happy, please feel our love, for you are surrounded by it.) This is a very special family. Brooke and my sister Jill and I have found the other sister we needed all along ! Brooke you are the best - and do what do - you'll be checking in on Mom more - and in a little different way. She'll be checking on you and Jack and Steve - and take strength from the knowledge that Todd is still around, but also he is with those who went before him. You all are so important to me - and Lois you just keep getting younger! Love, strength, healing tears as daily life without Todd goes on.
