“ I Remember when he held me tight when I was scared and I wish I could have that feeling just one more time

“ Just heard about the passing of Tracey Goo from a former colleague. I retired a few weeks ago and supported him with his store management talent needs in Chicago years ago. He was a nice guy and cared about the associates and managers.

“ The idea of working for a leader as real as Tracey is what made me want to take that next step to better myself. To step out of my comfort zone knowing I have his support and will back me up no matter what. He leads with his true self not to satisfy others beliefs of what a true leader should be. He leads with his heart and will always offer his time and shoulder to anyone who needs it. I always told Tracey he has people who works for him who will do anything for him because I trully believed Tracey will do anything for us. "What do you need?" He will stop what he is doing to get you just that. You have changed so many lives whether directly or indirectly including mine. I have missed your presence these last few months. And will now treasure every little interactions. A lot of us will be forever be grateful Tracey. I know, even up there you will be proud.

“ I will always remember Tracey for his ability to make you feel comfortable and valued. He showed his kindness so many times to me as well as my team. Whenever someone was going through anything difficult he would always say " what do they need" . There were so many times he would advocate for others with the only stipulation being they are not told he was the one helping. When I was going through a difficult time in my personal life he took the time to check in on me every single day to ask " what do You Need" . I will miss his laughter, his never ending support, and his amazing energy . When Tracey walked in a room you knew it. I will miss how he would speak of his family with such sincere affection. I will always remember and miss my friend. In life if we're lucky we get to meet someone that through there actions make us want to be a better person. Tracey was that guy. My deepest sympathy s go out to his family, friends and all that loved him.
RIP Tracey.
Your friend, Jody
